7. SPECIFIC RISKS OF DEALING WITH SERVICES

7A. FOREIGN CURENCIES AND METALS

7A.2. The Client understands that due to the adverse and unpredictable market movements, large losses could incur within a short period. The Client should carefully consider the risks associated before dealing with any Transaction and is encouraged to trade at volumes which the Client is prepared to lose.

7B. FUTURES

7B.1. Futures are standardized contracts that deliver a certain number of subject matter at a specific time and place in the future. Parties are obliged to deliver and transact an asset at a future date and price.

7B.2. The leverage available also meant that a small amount of funds can lead to a large movement in the Services invested, subsequently bring large losses or large gains. The Client may be required to deposit a substantial amount of funds in a short term to maintain the open positions, failing which your positions shall be liquidated at a loss and we shall not be liable for any direct or indirect loss or damages. As such, you acknowledge that futures transactions have contingent liabilities attached to it.

7C. SHARES

7C.1. Shares or “equities” represents an equity ownership in a company’s share capital. Shares are generally not as high risk as the Services here, but there are still risks of losing money as there may be a huge difference in the price of shares depending on the time of transaction and market conditions.

- 7C.2. All shares purchased for the Client or transferred to us by the Client into the Trading Account will be purchased in the name of and/or held by a nominee company selected by us, for the benefit of the Client. As investments will be held in the name of a nominee company, the Client may not have voting rights which he would have had if he held the investment in his name.
- 7C.3. Risks of trading shares in smaller companies may be higher in comparison with blue-chip companies. They have a larger degree of price fluctuation and the Client may have to sell at a lower market price as a result of the difficulty in liquidation.

The Client could trade on margin, utilise “gearing” or “leverage” effect while trading CFD, so only a small amount of deposit is required to trade and as such, a small market movement or fluctuation in prices may affect the asset or investment value greatly. Even when the products are not traded on margin, the Client may be required to make further payments in certain circumstances.
- 7D.2. The Client acknowledges that:
- (a) CFDs are not suitable for long term investor due to several factors, such as overnight fees or gapping (financial instrument opens above or below the previous day’s close with no trading activities in between). Market volatility and leverage also meant that the trading risks increase as you hold CFDs longer;
 - (b) trading in CFDs meant that the Client is only trading for the price difference of the underlying financial instruments and as such, CFDs do not provide any rights to the underlying financial instruments;

- (c) Slippage may occur in some transactions where there could be a difference between where the computer signalled the entry and exit for a trade and where actual clients, with actual money, entered and exited the market using the computer's signals; and
 - (d) CFDs are not traded on any exchange and they are Over-The-Counter products whereby the prices of the CFDs are derived from the underlying market.
- 7D.3. The Fees and the swap fees are not included in our quoted prices and are charged explicitly to the Account(s). In the case of the swap fees, the value of opened positions in some types of financial instruments is increased or reduced by a daily financing fee as long as the Client holds the respective financial instrument. The financing fees shall be based on prevailing market interest rates. From Mondays to Thursdays, swap fees are charged daily. However, on Fridays swap fees are charged triple to take into account the swap fees on weekends. Details of our Fees and swap fees are available on CG FinTech's website and the Trading Platform.
